Combine COUPON - RATIONING ECONOMY with Dignity & Style

The economic strategy of total warfare compels rigorous economy in all public services. Economy can be achieved in Nurses' Uniforms without sacrifice of dignity and style. Frills and fancies have to be cut out: there are to be fewer metal fasteners, and less valuable starch is to be used.

J. H. Bounds of Stethos House, aided by long years of study of hospital problems, has incorporated all these desiderata in war-style Uniforms. Most successfully they retain their old distinction and Stethos Uniforms are attractiveness. lighter and more comfortable to wear; guaranteed zero shrunk also-shape and fit maintained throughout the garment's life; colour fastness effects saving in washing and no starch is needed for Collars, Cuffs, or Belts.

Expert Uniform Consultants are at your call. Their knowledge and advice gladly given.

HOSPITAL BEDDING

Bedding Equipment is renowned—Sheets, Sheetings, Pillow Cases, Pillow-

ings, Pillows, Blankets, Under-blankets, Quilts, Bed-spreads, Mattresses, Mattress-covers, Rubber Bed Sheets,

BANDAGE CLOTHS

Stethos Bandage Cloths are specialities of highest quality. The materials for orthopædic work have been com-mended. In a standard work on dislocations and fractures, Book Muslin-B.M. 14 is recommended.

The Evans organisation has served the world of medicine for more than a century. The Company has a unique knowledge of the medical supplies required in the public health services and hospitals. As a result, the reliability both of its products and service are recognised by the leading hospitals and public health departments in this country and abroad. Evans Medical Products are manufactured in three separate units — The Evans Biological Institute, Evans Pharmaceutical Laboratories, Evans Fine Chemical Works — where every stage of research and production is supervised by a trained staff of scientific workers. Raw materials and final products alike are submitted to the appropriate tests, ensuring that they conform to the Company's standards of purity and therapeutic efficacy, as well as the statutory requirements of the British Pharmacopæia, the Therapeutic Substances Act, and other relevant official orders and regulations.

Symbol of MODERN SOAPMAKING

In no other trade has science played a greater part. From crude methods of manufacture soapmaking has become an outstanding achievement of applied science.

Today in the Hedley factories the latest methods of soap manufacture make possible the production of specialised soaps for a score of different uses.

Specialised soaps require different processing, but all Hedley soaps have three things in common . . . purity, quality and uniformity. These three essentials form the keystone of the Hedley policy.

We are the makers of Cream Suds, Super Curd Flakes, Snowhite Flakes for laundry work; Olivso Bar, Trafford Bar, Scourox Cleansing Powder for general cleaning purposes.

Nave You Considered the Merits of SANTRON the New Germicide ?..

Gynæcology and Midwifery Santron contains a higher percentage of pure potash castor oil soap, and differs from most germicides in that an additional soap solution is not required. It is clean and pleasant to use. When necessary may be applied in undiluted form.

For Hospitals The essential oils do not produce any overpowering odour. The standard Rideal Walker Test proves the strength on the Typhoid Baccillus to be five times stronger than pure Phenol. Even under the most unfavourable conditions Medical research workers in a London Teaching Hospital have shown that Santron exerts its antiseptic power in a high degree. It is available to Hospitals and Public Institutions in bulk quantities at an amazingly low price.

In General Practice

For cleansing cuts and wounds, sterilization of hands and instruments, Santron is efficient and convenient. Non-poisonous, non-corrosive and harmless to linen or delicate materials.

In the Home

Santron is available to the public through all chemists, and may be indicated for all purposes of personal hygiene, including gargling, as a deodorant, and general disinfecting of sick rooms, and treatment of clothes.

Santron is manufactured solely by Rendells, a name known to the Medical Profession throughout the world for over 50 years. Like all other Rendell Products, it is made under the same scrupulous conditions and control of an independent Medical Board.

Santron is being used by many General and Women's Hospitals, Public Institutions and Factories throughout the Country.

HOSPITAL LAW NOTES

By SIR WILLIAM BAYNES, M.A., LL.M.

of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, Hon. Legal Adviser to The British Hospitals Association

The book deals with practically every legal or semi-legal point on which Secretaries of Hospitals have asked for information during several years past, and there is reason to hope that it may contain the answers to most of the legal problems that Secretaries ordinarily meet with in practice.

The subjects are arranged alphabetically and fully indexed to facilitate reference.

Press References

"This book should be one of the working tools of any hospital administrator, whether member of a committee or executive officer."—The Times.

executive officer."—The Times.

"They cover almost every conceivable legal or semi-legal difficulty which a hospital secretary is likely to encounter....
The notes on road accident patients, on the recovery of incometax under subscribers' seven-year covenants, and on liability for negligence are good instances of the clear and concise help which Mr. Baynes offers to his readers. The secretaries of hospitals and similar institutions who buy his little book will get good value."—The Lanct.

"It is difficult not to use extravagant superlatives in expressing one's admiration of this book... No hospital secretary should be without it, and it should be worth almost its weight in Treasury Notes to proprietors of private hospitals and nursing homes, though of course it does not deal with the legal problems which are peculiar to their status."

British Medical Journal.

"This is a book which has long been needed. We desire to congratulate Mr. Baynes on the excellence of these notes which are characterized by accuracy throughout. They show a practical acquaintance with the law on the subjects dealt with, and no doubt this book will soon be in great demand. It certainly ought to have a long and useful career before it. Meantime it has our warmest recommendation."—The Medical Times.

"Beneath its unassuming title this book hides a mine of information for the hospital officer. One is struck by the simplicity of its language and by the avoidance of legal phraseology whenever possible... The book should also be of value to any member of the legal profession whose practice brings him into contact with hospitals."—The Hospital.

"Of very great practical value to everyone connected with hospitals or with nursing and convalescent homes or similar institutions. It is a book which can be thoroughly recommended to anyone who is interested in the legal side of hospital work and management. Its accuracy can be vouched for."

A causal and symptomatic remedy . . a compound cestrogenic for oral administration for conditions associated with ovarian follicular hypofunction

MENOPAX is a complex estrogenic sedative combining the causal effect of Stilbestrol Dipropionate with the symptomatic action of Valeriana, Caffeine Sodium Salicylate, Calcium Lactate etc., and is of proved value in (1) relieving the complaints of the menopausal syndrome; (2) leading to the appearance of cornified cells in the vaginal smear in menopausal states; (3) restoring the normal conditions of the vulva and vagina in senile atrophic vaginitis; (4) relieving the pain of dysmenorrhea, etc.

Stilbæstrol Dipropionate acts similarly to the natural æstrogens, but is several times more active and its action more prolonged given by mouth. Stilbæstrol Dipropionate is used in preference to Stilbæstrol itself, since it is believed to liberate Stilbæstrol slowly, thus giving a prolonged action. a prolonged action.

The absence of the toxic effects of Stilbæstrol in MENOPAX is ascribed to its well-balanced composition and to the inclusion of Calcium Lactate to check any tendency to nausea that otherwise may be experienced by patients hypersensitive to Stilbæstrol medication. So far no cases of indigestion, nausea or vomiting have been recorded after MENOPAX.

The use of MENOPAX constitutes a specific form of therapy in the successful peroral treatment of :-

Disinfection in Hospital Practice

In the Medical Research Council's War Memorandum No. 6 on "The Prevention of IIospital Infection" of Wounds," the importance of a careful check on available disinfectants is stressed.

"A list of times, strengths, and uses of the disinfectants which will be available in a ward should be posted up in prominent places in the ward itself and in the sterilising room and bathroom. Such a list should be compiled or checked by the hospital bacteriologists." (p. 27)

To some extent this advice has been anticipated by the makers of Izal germicide, who for some years have been supplying medical institutions with cards of instructions intended to ensure effective and economic use of Izal in all circumstances. The recommended instructions are based on lengthy bacteriological work in the Thorncliffe Research Laboratories. Full particulars are available to hospital pharmacists and others interested.

IS THE MOST EFFICIENT POLISH FOR HOSPITAL FLOORS

Its fluid state makes Liquid Mansion exceptionally easy to apply. The fine quality wax—its chief constituent—immediately responds to the action of the polisher and in a few seconds a very brilliant finish is obtained.

ECONOMY

Only the thinnest film of Liquid Mansion is required to obtain a bright and lasting polish. Its remarkable spreading powers effect a great saving in the amount of polish required to polish a floor efficiently.

HEALTH

Liquid Mansion contains a powerful antiseptic which makes it an effective protection against germs. It also thoroughly cleans the surface.

MAINTAINING APPEARANCE

The most attractive floors are those which are regularly polished. Liquid Mansion ensures the highest degree of finish to Stained or Parquet Floors and Linoleum.

FOR THE TREATMENT OF HERNIA

HECSON"

Super Elastic Truss

Where treatment of Hernia by surgical methods is undesirable for any reasons, the HECSON super elastic truss can be confidently recommended. The Special Feature of the HECSON Truss is that the perineal or under strap is attached to the top of the pad, instead of the lower margin as in the ordinary elastic or old spring truss. Thus it becomes part of the leverage mechanism for increasing the pressure of the pad at its base. In this way the HECSON truss can also be used to control a semi-scrotal hernia, not controlled by an ordinary elastic truss. Made of the finest quality elastic, with soft kid-covered pneumatic heads, the HECSON is comfortable and light, and yet gives maximum pressure on the external hernial ring.

SURGICAL DRESSINGS

HE GREATEST CARE IS TAKEN

IT IS PART OF ordinary hospital routine to take every conceivable precaution in theatre and ward to ensure aseptic or antiseptic conditions. Every member of the Hospital personnel knows this and her training and experience develop this care to a matter of every day habit.

In the same manner Manchester Surgical Dressings are made and packed, under ideal conditions, where strict control is exercised over every process, from the raw cotton or weaving stages to the final sterilised or medicated article. In this way the Hospital personnel know they are safe when they come to use them.

THE HOSPITALS YEAR-BOOK 1942

The superiority of

as a therapeutic agent

Recent work has shown that the irrigation of wounds, burns and ulcers with Milton, the stable brand of electrolytic sodium hypochlorite produces more rapid and thorough healing than would be expected from the use of the hypochlorite solutions prepared by chemical methods, with a corresponding freedom, moreover, from the irritating effects so often produced by the latter products.

ITS PROTEOLYTIC ACTION

The "powerful proteolytic action" of the hypochlorites, (1) so essential in the cleansing of the wound area, is possessed by electrolytic hypochlorite to very little less degree than by the more irritant chemically prepared hypochlorites. (2) In the envelope method of treatment, the initial cleansing, (3) by hosing with 20 per cent. Milton solution, before the envelope is applied, obtains the full effect of this proteolytic action. Subsequent irrigations with a weaker solution of 5 per cent. or less, are adequate in maintaining this solvent action.

ITS INNOCUOUSNESS TO LIVING TISSUE

Carrel and Dehelly first noted that electrolytic hypochlorite solutions were less irritating to living tissues than chemically prepared Dakin's solution. (4) Lack of stability, however, was the main disadvantage which limited their clinical application. This defect has since been overcome by the production of Milton, the stable brand of electrolytic hypochlorite. It is the combination of stability with lack of irritant action on living tissue, unobtainable so far in any other hypochlorite, which has resulted in Milton becoming the standard electrolytic sodium hypochlorite for irrigation treatment.

ITS NON-CAUSTIC ALKALINITY

Recent independent tests have shown that the pH of Milton is 10·70; of Milton diluted to 5 per cent. with tap water (i.e., diluted 20 times) is 8·89 and Milton diluted to 20 per cent. with tap water (i.e., diluted 5 times) is 9·30. The same investigation indicated that the pH of Dakin's solution B.P. is 11·61 while the pH of 10 per cent. Dakin's solution (i.e., diluted 10 times with tap water) is 10.64. It should be noted that 5 per cent. Milton has approximately the same content of available chlorine as 10 per cent. Dakin's solution, whereas the pH values of the dilutions are respectively 8.89 and 10.64.

Therefore the dilution of Milton in common use for irrigation is far less alkaline than the corresponding dilution of Dakin's solution.

ITS HARMLESS RESIDUE

After its functions have been effected, Milton is reduced for all practical purposes to a simple harmless residue of salt and water. Milton because of its sodium chloride content combines the properties of a saline solution with those of an effective germicide. A 5 per cent. Milton solution is isotonic.

ITS PROMOTION OF HEALING

Recent clinical work has clearly established the action of Milton in promoting healing when applied by means of Stannard Irrigation Envelopes. In most cases the rate of healing has been strikingly rapid. (5)

Not least significant in treatment of wounds by envelope irrigation with Milton is the freedom throughout from pain, a point emphasized by all writers on the subject. One comments, "Pain—this is virtually absent," (6) while another states that in 27 cases of burns so treated "the relief of pain was remarkable." (7)

Those interested in treatment by irrigation with Milton are invited to write to the Professional Department of Milton Antiseptic Limited, John Milton House, London, N.7, for full information.

Protector Sanitary Equipment

BED PAN WASHERS

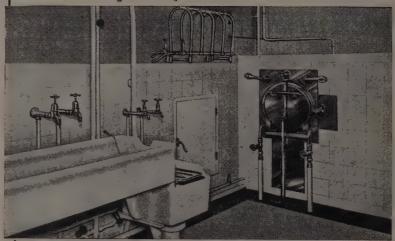

Wherever 'PROTECTOR' Bed-Pan Washers are installed, Hospital Authorities have noted marked improvement in the health of the Nursing staff, for they remove offence and the unhealthy conditions attached to the old types of open apparatus.

Two types are available:

No. B 2. Built-in type as illustrated.

No. B 5. Bracket type.

Full particulars will be sent on application.

STERILIZERS

The 'PROTECTOR' Series cover the complete range of Hospital requirements, and full information is obtainable by applying to the manufacturers.

D & H 'PROTECTOR' Sanitary Equipment is specified by the Admiralty, War Office, Air Ministry and other Government Departments.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR.

It is regretted that it has not been possible to publish this edition earlier. The data it contains are, in the main, obtained from the Annual Reports of individual hospitals, and many hospitals, owing to the abnormal conditions prevailing and to shortage of staff, were unable to produce their reports until several months later than usual.

Voluntary Hospital Finance, 1940.

During the year 1940 the voluntary hospitals of Great Britain and it is satisfactory to note that 69 per cent. of the hospitals had a surplus of total receipts over total expenditure as compared with 57 per cent. and 51 per cent. for the years 1938 and 1939 respectively.

The figures for the year 1939 were, of course, disturbed by the war, but the full effect of the abnormal conditions caused thereby can now be seen in the data for a complete twelve months under war conditions. Before drawing any conclusions from the statistics which follow it is necessary to note variations from pre-war conditions which were found to be necessary:—

- (1) The evacuation of large sections of the population from London and other large cities resulted in an increase in demand at many hospitals in the reception areas.
- (2) Owing to the danger of air-raids many hospitals in London and other large cities were required to close certain of their wards in the most vulnerable positions.
- (3) Under the Emergency Hospital Scheme of the Ministry of Health the majority of the hospitals, whether in "target" areas or not, were required to maintain a specified number of beds in reserve for the reception of "casualties" and the cost of maintaining these was met by the Ministry. While this arrangement relieved the hospitals of the cost of maintaining the beds so reserved it was also a most satisfactory one financially for the Government as, with the exception of the instances where hutment buildings were erected, they obtained the use of some thousands of hospital beds without the expenditure of vast capital sums. These reserved beds were intended primarily for air-raid or military casualties, but other categories such as persons evacuated under the Government schemes and transferred war workers were later covered by the Scheme.

(4) The reservation of beds under the Emergency Hospital Scheme necessitated in some cases the erection of hutment wards or the crowding of extra beds into existing wards. This factor accounts for the unusual increase in the number of "available beds" and reduces the value of comparisons with figures of earlier years.

Hospitals were affected by these war-time changes in a variety of ways, and the following examples may be helpful towards understanding how the substantial surplus of over £1,750,000 accrued, following deficits in the two previous years of £413,848 and £277,307 respectively:—

Some hospitals in "target" areas were required to close certain wards and at the same time to reserve a specified number of beds for "casualties." This resulted in a reduction in the number of patients treated, and in cases where normal income was received the net result was a surplus of income over expenditure.

At other hospitals, although a number of beds were reserved for casualties, the normal number of beds for civilian patients was obtained by erecting extra beds in the wards, while a slight saving to the hospital resulted from the spreading of some of the "overhead" expenditure over the larger number of beds.

It will be seen that in the case of many hospitals a state of temporary stability has been partly brought about by the cost of some of these beds being met by the Ministry of Health under the Emergency Hospital Scheme instead of from their voluntary income or such payments as the patients are able to afford.

For these reasons any very close comparison with the figures of earlier years would be misleading. Attention is, however, called to one or two of the outstanding features. Receipts for public services (Table 4) rose in London from £328,453 in 1938 to £647,202 in 1939 and £1,320,500 in 1940; in the Provinces from £570,188 in 1938 to £1,252,208 in 1939 and £1,882,808 in 1940, and in Scotland from £69,565 in 1938 to £174,278 in 1939 and £314,950 in 1940.

Concurrently with the increase in the amount received for public services, there was a drop, but to a much lesser extent, in payments made by the patients themselves, namely from £6,867,000 in 1938 to £6,726,000 in 1939 and £6,535,000 in 1940.

In spite of the disturbed conditions due to the war, as the result of which there were fewer organised events such as fêtes, concerts and whist-drives, etc., in favour of hospitals, their income from voluntary gifts was fairly steady. In London the total fell from £1,483,612 in 1938 to £1,296,666 in 1939 and £1,264,876 in 1940. In the Provinces the total fell from £1,724,323 in 1938 to £1,608,470 in 1939 and £1,505,003 in 1940, while in Scotland the corresponding figures were £331,544,£301,561 and £272,533 respectively.

Income by way of free legacies received by the voluntary hospitals in Great Britain during a number of years prior to the great slump of 1930 showed an upward tendency. This was followed by a slight decline, but during the years 1936 to 1940 inclusive, the total sum received kept remarkably steady, the figures being £1,749,989, £1,850,089, £1,843,586, £1,697,557 and £1,769,582 respectively.

The great increase in taxation since the outbreak of war, however, may be expected to be reflected in the 'amount hospitals receive from this source in the future, and it is incumbent on those responsible for their management to raise additional income from other sources to meet any drop in the amount received from legacies.

Another explanation of the surplus during the year 1940 is the drop in capital expenditure due to the temporary cessation of new building. For a number of years the capital expenditure by the voluntary hospitals was in the region of £3,500,000 annually, whereas during 1940 the figure dropped to £1,837,000.

When examining the tables which appear later in the Year-Book, it is necessary to bear in mind that the area of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London has been extended, and that the increase in the number of hospitals shown in the London tables is due to this cause, the figures for the earlier years being included in the tables for the Provinces.

Planning.

An upheaval like the present war is inevitably an occasion for looking back as well as looking forward. Many now reproach themselves with their previous lack of interest in public affairs; they are tempted to wonder how the situation arose in which there could be a repetition of the events of 1914-18 within a period of twenty five years, and in many other ways their minds have been either troubled or stimulated to think how these occurrences can be prevented in the future. This heart searching is particularly apparent today, as is shown by the energy being given in so many different walks of life by persons concerned with planning. It follows that in the vastly important question of the nation's health service, those most likely to be concerned, as well as many whose knowledge is almost entirely theoretical, are becoming increasingly active in consideration of the many problems which to any thoughtful person are apparent; but the present Minister of Health, perhaps more than any of his predecessors, has shown his interest as well as his appreciation of the fundamental importance of Health Services and in improving that part of the services provided by hospitals. In his oftquoted statement in the House of Commons in October 1941, general as it was, he nevertheless gave one or two indications of the very wide angle from which he was prepared to review the whole subject. For instance, he said that hospital treatment ought to be available for every person in need of it. In the past we have associated treatment in hospitals with the indigent poor, but there has been a growing realisation that continual advance and development of the greatest of the sciences had already reached a stage at which the best could only be obtained by the patient in a hospital, where alone could be housed under one roof all the apparatus, skill and the team of workers that are required to-day, whether it be to preserve health or to cure sickness.

On this one aspect of the problem alone, the repercussions on the pre-war hospital system are immense. The go-ahead hospitals had in many cases made some, but relatively very small, provision by way of private beds for the treatment of the general public.

The logical development of the views above propounded, however, means that there must be a vast expansion of these facilities, the need for which is not in dispute and the provision of which is more closely associated with financial problems than with any others. It is necessary, therefore, to refer to the wisdom invariably shown by Lord Nuffield in his benefactions, when he decided to support the establishment of Provident Funds, the nucleus of which is in many areas already in being, for the important purpose of developing wards for the treatment of the professional and other classes in hospitals.

From isolated references that have appeared in the press it would seem that with their experience of Contributory Schemes and with their knowledge of the wide range from which their patients are already drawn, the voluntary hospitals are even now engaged in considering among themselves ways and means of making their services available to all. This is an interesting development in view of the amount of time that has been given to such considerations by the British Medical Association, as evidenced by its many publications of policy and views, and it might be hoped that the time is not far off when a closer link might be established between this and other bodies concerned with the future development of health and hospital services in considering problems, whether of policy or otherwise, which must in the long run be of common concern to them all.

Again, the Minister of Health referred to a pattern of hospital services for the future, in which hospitals maintained and provided by the local authorities would, together with the great company of voluntary hospitals that were the pioneers in the battle with disease, in partnership provide a co-ordinated and integrated hospitals service for the nation. The extra measure of coordination and the means to secure it both at the centre and within the compass of areas is already engaging the minds of those most competent to advise, and has already been the subject of a number of interesting articles and publications elsewhere. If the development of this great idea follows the traditional lines which in this country we have come to cherish—the line of evolution rather than revolution—the ultimate accomplishment of a fully integrated hospital service will develop steadily rather than rapidly. It is wise that this should be so, for there are many susceptibilities to be considered in the process, and the rapidity in the growth of new methods of treatment is such that any idea of a finalised complete scheme, incapable of further improvement, would in fact be an admission of ignorance of the whole problem on the part of those who would have the audacity to subscribe to it.

As an illustration of this fact may be quoted the measures now being taken for mass radiography, undreamt of five years ago, and it is important to bear in mind many implications in the conception of an effective as well as an economical hospital service on national lines. The service must be so distributed and grouped as to provide the necessary degree of accessibility while at the same time avoiding wasteful expenditure either of money or, far more important, of skilled personnel, by undue dispersal. At first blush these hypotheses may sound contradictory, but in fact they are mutually complementary, and provide yet another example of the absolute necessity for flexibility and a degree of elasticity not only in the conception but in the operation of any planning for a more effective hospital service.

From another angle there is evidence which shows that the voluntary hospitals are actively engaged in putting their own house in order. Hitherto, whatever other criticisms might be levelled against them, it was true to say that they were isolated independent units not only as regards the detail of their internal management but as regards their attitude to questions of the most fundamental importance as regards policy. There is plenty of evidence to show that once again conditions produced by the upheaval of war have revolutionised this position, and that where central negotiation on their behalf is necessary or where central discussion and determination on questions of general policy is necessary, it is with the full approval and support of the voluntary hospitals that both these functions are now undertaken by the British Hospitals Association as their national representative body.

Nursing.

In another sphere coming events cast their shadows before them. There was a time when nursing was the sphere, or almost entirely the sphere, of women who had primarily devoted their lives to religious work. The name of Miss Florence Nightingale is written in the book of history not only for what she did, but for the consequences of what she did, in that it was the inspiration of her example that undoubtedly extended over a much wider field the desire of other women to devote their lives to the service of the sick, as she had done. The fundamental aspect of nursing was still vocational; to-day it is realised that almost every career open to men is also open to women, and at the same time, due to the development of medicine and surgery, the need for nurses is infinitely greater than ever before. For these two reasons there has been, and there remains, a serious shortage of trained nurses.

During the transition stage from the days of Miss Nightingale to to-day there has been also a change in the conditions under which nurses, and particularly nurses in hospitals, work. It is undoubtedly true that there was a time-though certain elements in the press still would have it that they generally persist to-day—when the vocational ardour of the nurses, and particularly of the new entrants to the profession, may have been strained almost to breaking point by the conditions under which they worked; badly housed, not well fed, very hard worked, and much of it work that never should have been prescribed for a nurse to undertake. It cannot be too strongly emphasised that the conditions to-day have been greatly improved, and that to continue to suggest that the conditions under which nurses work at the present time are what they were twenty-five years ago, is as far from the truth as to compare the conditions of industrial workers to-day with the novels of Charles Dickens. Let it not be thought, however, that the conditions to-day are good enough; they can be improved, and if the intention of the Minister is thus correctly interpreted, the purpose of the Committee on nursing salaries which he has appointed under the Chairmanship of Lord Rushcliffe is at the moment concerned with deciding what advice should be given to the Minister to render those conditions not only unobjectionable, but such that women who might otherwise be tempted to seek their careers in other professions will be attracted to the great profession of nursing as their contribution to the services to the community.

Medical Staff.

Again, for very many hundreds of years the voluntary hospitals, very rightly, have been proud, if possible almost too proud, of the fact that their visiting medical staff gave their services free. Historically, as is well known, this was due to the fact that the patients accepted for treatment were the poor and the destitute. Appointments on the staffs of voluntary hospitals are recognised both within the profession and by the whole community to be the hall-mark of proficiency and ability. The process of transition and development to which reference has already been made, has already affected the type of patient admitted to hospitals. For many years the hospitals have accepted patients for treatment who were not destitute, and they have been asked to contribute towards the actual cost of their maintenance. The upheaval of the war and forethought as to its consequences make clear the fact that the economic position of the consultant doctor after the war is most unlikely to be similar to that which he enjoyed in the days of peace.

The voluntary hospitals have already grasped this fact and have as a body given general approval to conceding the principle that visiting medical staffs of hospitals should be offered remuneration for their services. That the voluntary hospitals can contemplate a change of this description, which involves departure from so long established and so long cherished a tradition and custom, probably shows more of their inherent vitality and their possession of that priceless possession, the power of adaptability, than any other single instance that could be quoted in their favour.

There are two aspects in the Voluntary Hospitals' Service (to escape reference to the off-criticised expression, Voluntary Hospital System) which will remain firm as a rock:—

- (1) The fact that the interests of the patient will always be regarded first, foremost and last; he or she is a fellow human being and must never degenerate into an identification number or an object upon which to practise experiments with nothing but a cold and calculating hand.
- (2) The interests of the public in these hospitals will be maintained by the continuation of the methods of management which they have been applying throughout their history. The managers are disinterested in everything except the welfare of the patients at any moment under their care and the good name of their hospital.

THE POSITION OF THE HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATOR IN THE POST-WAR PERIOD

By S. CLAYTON FRYERS, F.H.A., House Govern orand Secretary, Leeds General Infirmary.

A great deal of consideration is being given at the present time to the post-war planning of medical services. This arises mainly from statements made from time to time by the Minister of Health outlining in broad terms the policy of the Government more particularly with regard to hospital provision.

It is quite clear from the interest aroused, and the experience gained as the result of the Emergency Medical Scheme, which has shown that much can be accomplished by co-ordination between public and voluntary hospitals, that changes in our postwar methods are not only desirable but imperative. Those who have knowledge, and few are in a better position to judge than the lay administrators in our voluntary hospitals, realise the shortcomings and inadequacy of the hospital service as it existed before the war and appreciate the need for far-reaching changes. An enlightened public will surely demand a properly co-ordinated system of hospitals in which there shall be no overlapping and where the best possible use will be made of every available bed, which is not the case at

Hospital services must be so integrated as to offer efficient hospital treatment to all who need it. This can only be done by ensuring that no institution shall be allowed to give services for which it is not adequately equipped, or permit treatment to be administered except by a medical and surgical staff fully qualified and specially skilled in the work they are called on to perform, and able to give sufficient time to the proper discharge of their duties. The achievement of such a system is far too important in the public interest to allow any vested interest, either professional or lay, to stand in the way.

From the spate of literature outlining the views of various organisations and individuals, there appears to be general agreement that future hospital organisation must be on a regional basis, that the present local government boundaries impose limits which are impracticable for health services and must be substituted by areas sufficiently large to develop and maintain a comprehensive hospital service. Those who believe in the value of the voluntary hospital system hope that it may be called upon to play an important and vital part in such a service, and are encouraged in this view, not only by the findings of the Cave Commission in 1921, and the Sankey Commission in 1937, but by recent pronouncements by the Minister of Health and his Chief Medical Officer.

In the post-war changes consideration is bound to be given to the important question of hospital administration which at present varies in different types of hospital, the senior administrator in the public authority hospital being a medical man, while with few exceptions, in the voluntary institution this post is held by a layman specially trained and experienced in hospital administration. Is there any reason why the two types of administration should not be continued, or is it desirable that there should be uniformity, and if the latter, which of the two methods is likely to produce the most satisfactory results? I feel sure that in the solution of this problem, both medical superintendents and lay administrators will, in the main, be sufficiently altruistic to be concerned rather about the end result, that is the economic and efficient running of the hospital, than by any motives of self-interest.

It is true that a hospital is primarily an Institution where medical treatment is carried out, but it is equally true that a modern hospital is a complex business undertaking of no small magnitude, representing many hundreds of thousands of pounds in capital, and in the larger hospitals from £150,000 to £250,000 in annual expenditure. Although medical services are important it must also be borne in mind that doctors and nurses can only do their best work if all the non-medical services function smoothly. It has been said by one eminent Medical Officer of Health that there can be no real co-operation between public authority and voluntary hospitals until the latter appoint medical superintendents. The converse might, of course, be claimed with equal logic. One might even go further and suggest that the Management Committee be comprised entirely of medical men, that the Minister of Health should always be a doctor and that the Treasury, in-sofar as it is concerned with the financial aspect of medical services, should likewise be under medical direction. By the same process of reasoning it might be argued that hospital architects should have medical qualifications. It is true that the layman cannot supervise medical work because he is not medically trained, and it is equally true that a medical man, unless he has had special business training and experience in all branches of hospital management, cannot adequately supervise and control this side of the hospital's activities. It is surely a sound business axiom that the head of a concern should have gained by experience and training knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of those who come under his direction, and it is presumably for this reason that many men who are going to take charge of large business establishments begin at the bottom and work up through the various departments. In a similar way, men in the Services are now required to go through the ranks before gaining a commission. On this basis the answer to the problem would seem to be obvious if the best results are to be obtained. Each of the hospital's activities should be under the control of those specially trained to undertake it.

The work of a hospital divides itself into three main categories:

- (1) Medical.
- (2) Nursing.
- (3) General administration.

It is suggested therefore that (1), the purely medical side, consisting of the control of the junior medical staff, regulation of admissions, ward supervision, theatre organisation, etc., should be under the direction of a medical superintendent or medical committee; (2) the nursing department, including the appointment and training of nurses, supervision of their duties and general behaviour and deportment, would come within the province of the Matron; (3) all other departments of the hospital, such as kitchens, laundry, stores, purchasing, accounting, works dept., appointment of lay staff, etc., as well as committee work would be the responsibility of the lay administrator.

Each of these officers should be responsible directly to the committee of management for their respective departments, and as their duties can be so easily and clearly defined this should not present any insuperable difficulty, and would have the advantage of freeing medical superintendents to concentrate on scientific and clinical work and purely medical administration, leaving general hospital administration to the lay administrator.

As final decisions have to be reached by committees consisting in the main of laymen, they may wish to have the advice of an experienced lay administrator, and here again is a further reason for such an officer with suitable status in the hospital. This is also important by reason of the fact that many medical reports may involve administrative changes and reorganisation.

In the past the medical superintendent in municipal hospitals has had supreme control of beds and was responsible for the treatment of patients therein. In the more progressive municipal hospitals, however, there is a growing tendency for the beds to be placed under the control of the visiting specialist, with the result that the work of the superintendent becomes less clinical and more and more administrative.

One eminent medical superintendent told me some time ago that he kept a stethoscope hanging in his office to remind him that once he was a doctor. Such a state of affairs cannot surely be satisfactory to a medical man after a long period of clinical training. An important reference to administration is made in para. 89 of the Draft Interim Report of the Medical Planning Commission, which reads as follows:—

"Medical Committees. A difference of fundamental importance that exists between voluntary and council hospitals lies in the internal medical administration. In the voluntary hospitals a medical staff committee is given full scope for initiative and responsibility in all internal affairs of a professional character. In clinical matters its authority is complete. In the council hospitals, on the other hand, too much responsibility for internal administration is vested in the medical superintendent and too little is allowed to the other members of the medical staff. The medical staff has no access to the Hospital Committee of the Authority except through the medical superintendent. The lack or insufficiency of executive responsibility may hamper the medical staff in the work of their departments and may retard medical progress. There should be therefore in all hospitals medical committees composed of the medical staffs above a certain grade and these committees should have direct access to the Hospital Committee of the Authority or to the management of the hospital as the case may be."

THE POSITION OF THE HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATOR IN THE POST-WAR PERIOD

Here again it would appear that the responsibilities of medical superintendents are likely to be restricted. I mention this merely to indicate that if the treatment of patients is to pass into the hands of visiting staff, and a medical staff committee is to be given responsibility for internal affairs of a professional character with complete control in clinical matters, the functions of the medical superintendent must become almost entirely administrative and non-medical.

As a result of the E.M.S. and progress being made towards regionalisation due to the activities of the Nuffield Trust, administrators of the different types of hospital are being brought into closer contact with each other, and it is obvious that these contacts must be more closely developed in the future. Realising that lay administrators in different types of hospitals have many interests in common, and also envisaging the need for coordination, the Association of Hospital Officers and the Association of Clerks and Stewards of Mental Hospitals have recently merged themselves into one association known as the Incorporated Association of Hospital Administrators. Provision has been made for the admission of administrative officers of hospitals provided by Public Health Authorities and Departments of State and other analogous bodies.

While the two bodies will for the time being continue their educational work on separate lines, a special committee is to be set up to consider the problems of recruitment and training of hospital staffs in all its aspects.

The Committee will have in mind the recommendations of the Sankey and Hadow Reports as well as the work of the College of American Hospital Administrators.

It is hoped that the reconstituted Association will do valuable work in solving problems which will arise in the development of a satisfactory administrative system for all hospitals.

It will be for the Association to see that there are available in sufficient numbers well-trained young men of good general education and address who have had adequate practical experience of hospital administration, and have supplemented their practical experience with a wide study of subjects bearing on this matter.

I am convinced that the trained lay administrator will have an important part to play in the hospital and health services of the future. The development of a strong association comprising all engaged in hospital administration is therefore of vital importance at the present time, and it is to be hoped that the Ministry of Health will not fail to take advantage of the expert help which such an Association can give in the reconstruction of our hospital services.

INSURANCE AGAINST THIRD PARTY RISKS.

By W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

Limits of Hospitals' Liability

- 1. The expression "Third Party Risks" is used here in the restricted meaning of a hospital's legal liability to all persons (other than employees coverable by an Employers' Liability policy) in respect of their death, illness, or personal injury, or of damage to their property, resulting from the fault or negligence of the Hospital Committee or any of its employees (except accidents in connection with motor ambulances and cars). This negligence may be the omission of a duty, or its careless performance, or any act done without reasonable care, or failure to keep the hospital premises in a reasonable state of safety and repair. "Negligence" may be generally defined as a failure to show that reasonable amount of care which an ordinarily sensible person might be expected to show in the same circumstances.
- 2. Owing to the peculiar relations that exist between a hospital and its patients, and seeing that patients are in a more or less helpless condition, the "reasonable care" that must be exercised with regard to them means a much greater degree of care than is necessary towards persons who are capable of looking after themselves. Negligence in connection with patients (whether free or paying) will mean "want of reasonable care having regard to the condition of the patient."
- 3. A hospital is not liable for the negligence of a physician or surgeon (whether honorary or paid) in his diagnosis, treatment of, or operation upon a patient, unless it can be shown that the hospital did not use proper care in appointing the medical staff. Neither is a hospital liable for the negligent work of a pathologist, radiologist, or other medical man who is in the service of the hospital but is free to carry out his work in whatever way he thinks best, without being subject to any directions from the hospital as to how he shall do it.
- 4. A hospital is, however, responsible for the negligence of a house physician or surgeon in the exercise of any duties outside his purely clinical work, as those duties are subject to the supervision of the managing body. For instance, the managing body of a hospital have been held responsible for the failure of their medical superintendent to see that the wards were properly disinfected.
 - 5. A hospital is responsible for the negligence

- of the matron and nurses in the performance of any of their duties, whether professional or otherwise, and whether these duties are carried out on the hospital premises or elsewhere.
- 6. It is however the duty of a nurse to do as she is directed by a physician or surgeon, and so long as she is carrying out their directions properly, neither she nor the hospital will be liable for any injurious results from her action—unless the directions given were so obviously wrong that she ought to have known that there was some mistake about them. If, however, she carries out her orders negligently (whether the physician or surgeon is present at the time or not), then both she and the hospital will be liable for her negligence.
- 7. A radiographer is in the same position as a nurse as regards any question of negligence and responsibility therefor.
- 8. A hospital is also responsible for the negligence of any students or others in a similar position who are in fact employed to do work for the hospital, even though they receive no pay, as they are acting as the agents of the hospital.

Advisability of Insurance

- 9. The great majority of accidents giving rise to claims for compensation are of little importance, such as slight burns, etc., the claims being usually settled for a few pounds, and if this were all that needed to be guarded against it might hardly be worth while to insure. But there is always the chance of some accident causing serious injury and calling for such heavy compensation that a hospital may have considerable difficulty in finding the necessary money to satisfy it.
- 10. Besides this, there is undoubtedly a growing tendency on the part of the public to enforce their legal rights against hospitals in the event of any accident happening, and juries are now more ready than they used to be to award substantial damages against hospitals—partly, no doubt, because they assume that nowadays all hospitals are properly insured against such risks.
- 11. Within the last few years there have been several serious claims against hospitals. In one case £2,000 was awarded to a visitor to a hospital who was seriously injured by slipping up on a loose mat. In another case £1,500 was paid for injuries caused by part of a hospital's boundary wall falling on a passer-by. In another, £500 was awarded in respect of injuries to a child who fell from a hospital window. And in three cases damages ranging from £750 to £3,500 have been awarded in respect of diseases contracted in hospitals owing to failure to take proper precautions to avoid infection.

12. Although such claims as these are no doubt few and far between, a similar accident may happen at any time, and it is therefore recommended that all hospitals should be insured against third party risks—and having regard to the amount of the awards mentioned above, cover up to the amount of £5,000 in respect of any one accident seems to be desirable.

Rates of Premium

- 13. No distinction is made in third party risks policies between liability to patients and liability to the general public. The amount of premium is usually based on the number of patient beds in the hospital.
- 14. Insurance against these risks up to an amount of £5,000 in respect of any one accident can be effected at a premium rate of 1s. 6d. per annum per hospital bed. The names of offices offering this insurance at reasonable rates, and particulars of the terms of their policies will be supplied to voluntary hospitals on application to The British Hospitals Association.
- 15. Many insurance offices now include in their policies a clause indemnifying the hospital staff against their personal liability whilst acting on behalf of the hospital.
- 16. The usual commission is 15 per cent. of the premium annually.

Points for Consideration when effecting Insurance

17. The main point to ascertain when taking out a policy covering third party risks is that the policy does in fact give the full comprehensive cover required, and that the cover is not whittled away by a number of exceptions. For instance, the cover is often restricted to "accidents," excluding "illnesses"; the liability of the hospital to all members of its staff is excepted, whereas the exception should be limited to those entitled to the benefit of the Workmen's Compensation Acts; notice is required of any alteration of risks—which is impossible in a hospital where new apparatus is constantly being introduced; all lifts, cranes, boilers, machinery, etc., are excepted; the risk of ptomaine poisoning is excepted or specially limited; "reasonable care" is required to be taken by the hospital in certain matters on pain of the policy becoming ineffective; and so on. No policy should be accepted by a hospital without the most careful scrutiny of all the exceptions and conditions it contains.

- 18. It should be quite clear from the wording of the policy that it covers the hospital against its legal liability in respect of
 - (a) all claims that are based on the alleged fault or negligence of any employee, including voluntary and/or temporary workers, and whether the accident occurs on or away from the hospital premises, and
 - (b) all claims that are made by any person other than an employee who is coverable by an Employers' Liability policy, and
 - (c) all claims that arise out of any bodily injury or illness (fatal or otherwise) except those which are already provided against by a policy covering motor-ambulances and cars. Accidents in connection with boilers, lifts and machinery may also be excepted if and in so far as these are in fact already insured against by separate policies.
- 19. If the policy includes cover against claims in respect of death or illness alleged to be due to ptomaine poisoning or deleterious substances in food or drink supplied by the hospital, the policy should make it clear that the hospital is protected against this risk even in the absence of any fault or negligence on the part of the hospital or its staff.
- 20. It is usual for policies to fix the maximum amount to be paid in respect of any one accident or occurrence. When deciding what amount this should be, therefore, it must be remembered that, if several persons are injured in one accident, the Insurance Company will not expend more than this maximum limit in satisfaction of all their claims.
- 21. The total amount to be paid under the policy in the case of several accidents during one year should be unlimited.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Object of Survey.

The object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to:—

- (a) The facilities available for treatment and the extent to which they are utilised,
- (b) The annual cost involved and the several sources from which the funds are derived.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings:—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.

Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.

Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given:—

General Hospitals associated with Medical Schools.

Children's Hospitals; Ear, Nose and Throat Hospitals; Eye Hospitals; Women's Hospitals; Maternity Hospitals, etc.; etc.

Omission from the tables of certain Hospitals. As announced in the 1939 edition of the Year-Book (page xlv), the figures of hospitals which, after full notice, have failed to comply with certain minimum requirements in uniform accounting, do not appear in these Tables. These requirements are:—

- (a) The rendering of an Annual Report by a prescribed date.
- (b) The adoption of the Calendar Year for the Annual Accounts.
- (c) The presentation of the accounts on the lines laid down in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, or (temporarily) in a form admitting of adjustment to comply with it. Explanations and notes of the effect of this requirement on certain hospitals will be found on pp. 17 and 18.

A djustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., the same as the Metropolitan and City of London Police Districts. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals. The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Thanks.

The Editors desire to express thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, to the Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals and to the Public Authorities who have kindly supplied information.

Note.—The following hospitals, whose accounts are otherwise satisfactory, did not classify their maintenance expenditure as enjoined in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts on which the preceding Table (5) is based. As it has not been found possible to correct their classification no alternative has been left but to omit their expenditure from this one table. This greatly lessens the value of one of the most important tables of the series and it is desired that each hospital concerned may examine its classification of expenditure with a view to adopting for the future that followed by the 768 conforming hospitals.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL.

Address: County Hall, Westminster Bridge, S.E. 1. Tel. Waterloo 5000. Medical Officer of Health: W. Allan Daley, M.D., F.R.C.P.

Notes.

Ambulances.—The Council controls its own Ambulance service; for particulars see page 205.

Pathological Services.—A pathological service is available to all hospitals through a number of group laboratories, which are staffed by pathologists, assistant pathologists, and technicians. Each group laboratory is responsible for the pathological work of hospitals in its district. The majority of the general hospitals included in this scheme are also each provided with a hospital laboratory staffed by a technician, where routine pathological work is done.

HOME AMBULANCE SERVICE

Telephone: Sloane 9828 & 7136.

Headquarters: The Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society, 12, Grosvenor Crescent, London, S.W. 1.

THE Home Ambulance Service of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society was set up in 1919 with the intention of providing better means of transport for the sick and injured throughout the country.

The end of the War afforded an opportunity for meeting a want that had become seriously urgent.

At the time the Armistice was signed, a large number of the ambulances of the Order and Society was still effective. Many had been shattered by enemy gun-fire. There was, however, a considerable number that could be made available for a further period of service.

Happily it was at this moment that the two organisations decided that the need for united efforts had not ceased with the War. It was arranged that for certain purposes they should continue to work together in promoting the health of the community, and one of the first steps they undertook in that direction was the organisation of a National Ambulance Service for England, Ireland and Wales.

The Committee has every reason to believe that the Home Ambulance Service has become an important link in the chain of organisations for the promotion of the health of the community, and that the co-operation of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society in its establishment has been justified by the result.

HOSPITAL SERVICE AND PRIVATE HIRE.

Arrangements may be made by telephone or letter for the conveyance of patients from London to any part of the country.

A male attendant always accompanies the driver of the ambulance.

A charge of 10s. is made for the conveyance of a patient from any address within the administrative County of London to any Hospital in the same area.

By arrangement with Hospital Almoners a service is maintained for the transfer of patients from Hospitals to Convalescent Homes.

A female attendant accompanies all convalescent cases and if sufficient notice is given a similar arrangement may be made for the Private Hire Service.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL AMBULANCE SERVICE.

HEADQUARTERS: THE COUNTY HALL, S.E. 1. Telephone No.: Waterloo 3311.

I. Ambulances Supplied without Payment.

THE Council provides, within the Administrative County of London, ambulances, free of cost, for the conveyance to:—

A. Hospitals and/or private residences of:

Persons meeting with accidents or suffering from sudden illnesses in the streets, public places, places of employment, etc.

B. Hospitals:—

- (i) Persons meeting with accidents in their homes;
- (ii) Persons suffering from illnesses in their homes if a medical practitioner certifies that the case is one of life or death, and that arrangements have been made for the reception of the patient in a hospital;
- (iii) Parturient women, if the case is one of urgency, whether from the home, place of business, or elsewhere, on the application of a qualified medical practitioner or certified midwife, provided that either a doctor or midwife accompanies the case; and
 - (iv) Non-urgent cases of parturition.

In such cases admission to a maternity bed must have previously been arranged and a card (issued by the Council to hospitals and municipal maternity homes) for such admission obtained. This card must be handed to the ambulance attendant at the time of removal.

In these cases a nurse or a female friend must accompany the patient. The patient may also be accompanied by her husband.

(Note.—The Corporation of the City of London maintains its own ambulance service for dealing with cases of accident and illness occurring in the streets within the City area.)

How to obtain an ambulance for :-

Cases coming under classes A and B (i).

No telephone number is required; dial "999" and ask the operator for "AMBULANCE."

Cases coming under classes B (ii), (iii) and (iv).

· Ask the telephone operator (or dial) for one of the headquarters telephone numbers, namely: WATerloo 6000, NEW Cross 2645, CENtral 6301, or REGent 4000.

When communication has been effected, particulars should be clearly given in this order: Place of accident or illness, name of the caller.

- C. The Council's hospitals for infectious cases.
- D. The Council's hospitals and institutions for non-infectious cases.

In cases coming under class D no charge is made at the time of removal, but there is a liability to assessment of a charge based on the patient's ability to pay.

II. Ambulances Supplied on Payment.

E. Ambulances and ambulance omnibuses are also provided by the Council, when not required for the purposes stated above, on payment of charges, as laid down from time to time by the Council, for the conveyance of infectious and non-infectious cases between private houses, hospitals (other than to the Council's hospitals, etc., under the provisions of Section I) nursing homes and for examinations, consultations and treatment by specialists or at special establishments.

The conveyance of private persons between addresses both of which are outside the administrative county of London cannot be undertaken, unless in circumstances of exceptional urgency.

Arrangements for the reception of an infectious case must be made by or on behalf of the patient before application for an ambulance is sent to the Council.

How to obtain an ambulance for:-

Cases coming under classes C, D and E:—

Application should be made by telephone to Headquarters Telephone No. WATerloo 3311, when full information and the charge for any proposed removal may be obtained at any hour of the day or night, including Sundays and public holidays.

DISTRICT NURSING.

Patients who require skilled nursing in their own homes and who are unable to provide themselves with private care can be attended by district nurses. The country is almost completely covered by District Nursing Associations, 2,229 of which in Great Britain and Ireland are in affiliation with the Queen's Institute of District Nursing and therefore employ fully trained nurses.

The nurses carry out any treatment ordered by doctors whether the patient is under the care of a private, panel or District Medical Officer, or is a patient receiving treatment at a hospital. Application can be made direct to the nurse, whose address can be obtained from the Queen's Institute. The Institute can also generally supply the addresses of unaffiliated nursing associations.

Necessitous cases are nursed free of charge but the Public Assistance Authorities, recognising the value of the service, make grants to nursing associations for their nurses' visits and these, with voluntary subscriptions and donations, assist to maintain the funds required to provide free or partly free visits.

Of recent years, as the financial position of the average patient has improved, a larger proportion of income has been derived from the people themselves and the introduction of Contributory or "Provident" schemes has become very general. These originated in rural areas where a subscription of from 1d. to 2d. weekly has been collected from house to house. This is now likely to be raised to a minimum of $1\frac{1}{2}d$. They are now organised in urban areas on subscription of 1d. and $1\frac{1}{2}d$. weekly according to the size of the population and type of area, whether residential or industrial. For families with incomes above National Health Insurance limit the subscription recommended is from 10s. a year. Subscriptions are collected by pay roll deductions, collections in places of employment and in various groups in the towns, often connected with women's, political and other meetings. In some places the hospital and nursing association have agreed to a combined contribution for their respective benefits. but in no case has the institution of a separate scheme for nursing proved to be competitive with that of the hospital, the one service being complementary to the other. Future developments of these schemes are likely to be (a) standardization of the rate of contribution, (b) development of reciprocal arrangements between associations, (c) regional organizations. Provident schemes have undoubtedly been the means of bringing skilled nursing attention to many patients who might otherwise have lacked this service and have brought much additional support to District Nursing Associations.

(For particulars of Queen's Institute of District Nursing see pages 232, 235 and 236.)

REFRIGERATION

For Food Storage, Ice Making, Mortuary Cooling, Blood, Serum and Vaccine Storage, Laboratory Duties, etc., Refrigerating Equipment by J. & E. Hall, Ltd. has a reputation for highest efficiency and complete reliability. Large central installations by J. & E. Hall, Ltd. are to be found in many of the leading Hospitals. Hallmark Automatic Refrigerating Equipment is extensively used in the smaller institutions and for isolated units in the larger Hospitals. ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S HOSPITAL AND COLLEGE

FOUNDED BY RAHERE A.D. 1123

WAR TIME ARRANGEMENTS

All the pre-clinical Departments of the College are now temporarily established at Cambridge, where full courses have been arranged to meet the requirements of the Regulations of the University of London and are carried out by St. Bartholomew's teachers.

The clinical work of the senior students continues to be based on St. Bartholomew's Hospital, but is also carried on in two large Hospitals in Sector III of the Emergency Medical Service, viz. at New Southgate and St. Albans, which provide a larger number of beds than normally. Adequate facilities for the teaching of Pathology and Midwifery have been arranged. All the Out-patient Departments at St. Bartholomew's are open.

Special arrangements are made for the housing of students.

A full Staff of clinical teachers is distributed over the Hospitals. Lecture courses are arranged in all Hospitals.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND PRIZES

Scholarships and Prizes to the total value of about £1,900 are awarded annually. Five Entrance Scholarships and two Exhibitions, worth respectively £200, 125 Gns., £100, £100, £50, £60 and £50, are awarded after examinations held annually, four in Science, three in Arts.

A handbook of the Hospital and College will be forwarded on application. All communications should be addressed to:

Charitable Elppeals.

On the following pages the Charities named below have given details of their particular and most pressing needs.

It is hoped that through the medium of this book part of their burden may be lightened. The greatest traditions of Voluntary Hospitals and indeed of all Charitable Bodies have been maintained in the past and will continue to be maintained in the future only by the personal interest and generosity of a multitude of sympathetic benefactors.

Charitably disposed people who realise the great work undertaken by the Voluntary Hospitals and kindred charities are asked to contribute towards its cost by Legacies, Donations or Annual Subscriptions.

The Secretaries of any of the Charities mentioned below will gladly supply further details regarding their work.

I. IT MUST BE TO A SOCIETY WHOSE PURPOSE IS UNCHANGING.

The one purpose of the Bible Society is to circulate the Scriptures without note or comment.

IT MUST BE TO A SOCIETY WHOSE RECORD IS UNIMPEACHABLE.

The Bible Society has sent out about 537,000,000 copies of the Scriptures since its foundation in 1804.

3. IT MUST BE TO A SOCIETY WHOSE SCOPE IS SUFFICIENTLY FAR REACHING.
The Bible Society broadcasts the Scriptures in 751 languages to every part of the world.

4. IT MUST BE TO A SOCIETY WHOSE ACTIVITIES CAN NEVER BECOME UNNECESSARY.
As long as humanity endures it will need the Scriptures, and the Bible Society is pledged to continue its labours for all time.

ROTUNDA HOSPITAL, DUBLIN

The Hospital contains 179 beds. Nearly 4,000 maternity cases and over 700 gynæcological patients are treated during the year. Besides the Hospital there is an extern Maternity Department with over 1,500 cases. The routine for students consists of attendance at the Morning Lectures on Midwifery and Gynæcology, examination of patients in the Gynæcological Departments, attendance at operations and all abnormal labour in the Hospital Wards, and conduction of labour cases in the intern and extern departments; a new large Ante-natal Clinic and Dispensary has just been added which gives increased facilities to Students, the Infants' Department is available also. The Pathological Laboratory has been considerably enlarged, and offers convenient facilities for practical work to Post Graduates and Students. There is a pregnancy-diagnosis station where the Aschheim-zondek test is carried out. The Bio-chemist is prepared to help any Post Graduate desiring to do research work on the material in the Hospital. There is a fully equipped X-ray installation under the care of a competent radiologist. Qualified students are allowed to assist at the major and perform some minor gynæcological operations.

The Hospital Courses are continuous throughout the year, and students may join at any time. The Class is limited, therefore it is advisable to register in advance. Board and residence can be obtained in the Hospital at £2 9s. per week.

Extra classes in gynæcological diagnosis and operative midwifery are conducted by the Assistants to the Master.

One grass and two hard tennis courts and one standard squash racket court are available for Residents.

This Hostel was founded in 1891. Its object is to provide a Home, where men and women in the last stages of illness, who, having seen better days, shrink from claiming the shelter of the County Hospital or Workhouse Infirmary and can appreciate very fully the refinement and comfort which we are able to give them, may end their days in peace carefully and tenderly nursed and surrounded by everything that can cheer them and alleviate their sufferings.

The Home is almost entirely dependent upon charity; it is absolutely free to all without distinction of creed or country.
